“Cross-Over Issues In Estate Planning and Family Law”

Family law attorneys Diana Richmond, Raquel Sefton and Monica Mazzei of Sideman & Bancroft, LLP will discuss the following family law issues that often arise in an estate planning practice:

- Requirements for a valid premarital agreement
- Characterization of separate and community property
- Effect of bifurcating marital status in a divorce proceeding
- Family Law Code requirements for transmutation of property
- Fiduciary duties of spouses and domestic partners
- Post-divorce estate planning

Raquel L. Sefton is the head of Sideman & Bancroft’s family law practice, part of the firm’s wealth practice group. A Certified Family Law Specialist, her practice focuses on representing high net worth individuals with complex family law needs, including parties in non-traditional relationships.

Diana Richmond concentrates her practice on family law. A Certified Family Law Specialist for more than 28 years, Ms. Richmond has a breadth of experience in nearly every aspect of this area, including complex marital property issues, spousal and child support, child custody, parentage, premarital agreements, and family law appeals.

Monica Mazzei focuses her practice exclusively on family law and specializes in dissolution actions involving complicated valuation and financial matters and complex community property and support issues.
